
LETTER TO THE MANAGEMENT

January 25, 2018

Dear Sir/Madam:

Once again, I am not being treated as befits my royal status.

My friends, the Nutz, have informed me that they found a website where a pig and a turkey are living in a house. A pig. And a turkey. As the Queen of Beasts, I demand equal rights! If a pig and a turkey can live in a house, then most certainly I should have one.

I know that there was a modular home recently moved onto the property, so I hereby claim that as my new castle. As soon as it is prepared to my specifications, I will move in and reside there with my staff.

There will need to be a large freezer filled with chicken in the kitchen, and a queen size bed in the sleeping chamber. Everything will be painted with the royal colors of purple and gold. And there will be pillows, lots and lots of pillows so that I can recline comfortably. And a large screen TV so that I can watch Animal Planet.

I will need a trumpeter standing on either side of the entrance door to announce my arrivals and departures. Also, a moat will need to be dug to keep those stinky tigers out. Since they love water so much, they will tire themselves out swimming around in circles and just go home without asking for an audience.

I expect these modifications to be made as soon as possible, as I would like to move in within the next month. Thank you for your attention to this very important matter.

Sincerely,

Her Royal Lioness, Nikita
(Sent via Lori D., Secretary to the Cats)